FAILED TO AGREE.

The woolgrowers of the West and woolen manufacturers of the East have been holding a conference in Washington. The manufacturers desire the support of the growers to get a higher tariff on woolen goods, and the growers were anxious to get the support of the manufacturers for a high tariff on wool. The growers insisted on 12 cents per pound on unwashed wool and 30 cents per pound on scoured wool. The manufacturers would not agree to that schedule and the conference adjourned without result.

The woolen manufacturers are tolerably well satisfied with the Wilson tariff bill. They can get wool in the seaport cities as cheap as it can be purchased in London or Antwerp and they are protected by a tariff from foreign competition. When the home market is supplied the woolen manufacturers of the United States can compete with English manufacturers in foreign markets. If the McKinley tariff is restored they cannot do that, and neither can they make as much profit on what they sell at home, unless the tariff on woolen goods is increased. They fear that Congress will not be disposed to make the artificial price, which it is proposed to place on woolen goods, too high as the people might rebel and therefore might consent to the restoration of the McKinley tariff on wool.

The cattlemen have not yet been heard from on the hide business, though it is known that they will insist on a specific duty on hides, which are now on the free list, and as no argument has been advanced in favor of a tariff on wool that does not apply with equal force to a tariff on hides, they will want to know why one should be protected and the other placed on the free list.

THE OREGON LEGISLATURE.

Whatever may be said of the Nevada Legislature it cannot compare in dilatoriness with that of Oregon. The webfoot statesmen have been in session thirty-two of the forty days to which sessions are limited and it has not yet organized. The golden have a large majority in the House, but they cannot agree upon a Speaker, so they have accomplished nothing, though they have attempted to run two branches of the Assembly, neither of which is recognized by the Senate or the Executive Department.

The constitution of Oregon does not limit the sessions of the Legislature, but it provides that members shall not receive over $120 compensation each for the session. This limit is now very nearly reached and if the session is prolonged beyond this week members will receive no compensation. A determined effort will be made this week to break the deadlock and if it is not successful the Legislature may adjourn sine die next Friday. Should that occur Oregon will have but one United States Senator in the next Congress as the United States Senate has established the rule that Senators appointed by Governors of States in which Legislatures have failed to elect shall not be admitted to seats in the Senate. Montana, Washington and Delaware have had but one Senator each in Congress for a whole session because of the failure of their State Legislatures to elect and it is not probable that Oregon will have more than one in the next Congress. This will strengthen the silver men in the Senate, as the Legislature elected by Mr. Hanna's campaign fund in Oregon if overwhelmingly Republican and its choice for Senator is between gold standard men.

HONESTY OR THIEF.

Says Representative de Armond, Justice Shiras has changed his mind in such a way, to lift from wealth a tax of from $40,000,000 to $80,000,000 a year and transfer it to poverty and toil. Men may change their minds, but when $40,000,000 to $80,000,000 are in the scale and a trained judge without further argument and additional light, changes his mind, why should there not be comment upon it? His name will be kept alive in honor, but because the American people have been outraged by him.

The Examiner commenting upon this says, "we do not consider that Justice Shiras is to be visited with special blame because he thought in April that the income tax was constitutional and in May it was not, and we cannot join with Representative de Armond in his insinuations," and further, "a judge should keep his mind open as long as the case is before him." This latter part we sincerely believe. A judge's mind should ever be ready to hear and weigh evidence, and he may proceed with the weighing even if he hears nothing, but no one can deny that the eminent jurist was very unfortunate in having to reverse himself in so short a time. He may have been honest, but the truth is, we believe, the American people by a very large majority think he did "hear" something, and that he did not need to weigh it in order to tell what it was worth. We presume this is considered anarchism by our Republican friends, but "a spade is a spade" and the truth is the truth. The "plain people" do not repose any remarkable degree of faith in Judge Shiras.

Wheat took another jump yesterday on account of war and rumors of war, it is said.

UNIVERSITY APPROPRIATIONS.

Clean-cut Views of a Well Known Educator.

EDITOR JOURNAL:—On account of hard times, some good citizens are advocating scant appropriations for our State University for the ensuing two years. If higher education and technical training were simply an expense, like the payment of salaries to executive and clerical officers, they would undoubtedly be right. But are not appropriations for the University in the nature of permanent and necessary investments—investments for better citizens and a more prosperous State—rather than mere expenditures?

As a citizen, not officially connected with the University, who has had much opportunity for observing its work and realizing the scope of its usefulness, I beg leave through your widely read columns to present some propositions that may possibly interest some of those who have its financial welfare in charge.

Whatever the University may have been in the past, it is no longer a local institution, in its membership or in its work and usefulness. It is rapidly assuming the work and proportions of a real university. In its mining, agricultural and business departments, it is preparing our young people for the skillful and practical development of the industries on which our State must depend for its future material prosperity. The training being given in other departments lays the foundation of various useful professions, making thoughtful and intelligent citizens; and at the same time the future teachers of our State are being trained for the weighty task of rightly developing and molding the minds of our future citizens. And in connection with all these phases of useful work, there is upbuilding in the membership of the University, a spirit of patriotism, that means citizens who love Nevada and have faith in her future.

The individual who would have something, must himself get it. So must a State. Let us get what special legislation we can from Uncle Sam; but let us not forget that the major part of any prosperity we are to have must come from what we are to do for ourselves.

After due allowance for the few students who do not profit by the opportunities furnished at the University, the young men and women there are worthy of all the State can do for them. They are yearly becoming better equipped in many kinds of mental and manual skill, and are acquiring accurate knowledge of their State's rich natural resources. No one, I think, who looks into the question carefully and broadly, will deny that the University is a prime need of the State, in all lines of usefulness and activity. It is yearly turning out bands of young men and women, whose knowledge and skill, as the years pass, will be invaluable to the State. Foster it liberally and it will repay you a hundred fold.

After the World's Fair in London, some forty years ago, England, realizing how far France was outstripping her in all the technical industries, realizing that her industrial prosperity was imperiled, began to establish technical schools and colleges, making liberal appropriations therefor. She then, for the first time, understood the practical benefit of educating the hands and brains of her artisans. And we know the result. After the Franco-Prussian war in 1870-71, Germany did the same thing, but on a very much larger scale. Her object was to surpass both France and England and to get from them much of the world's trade. The progress of the undertaking has been slow but sure. To-day England is alarmed at Germany's industrial progress and a royal commission has recommended the establishment of a large number of additional technical schools and colleges.

The time is at hand, that if a State or nation would be prosperous, she must educate, and especially must she educate in the line of useful industries. Other education, indeed, should go hand in hand with this, for there are other than material uses for education; but this is the feature that just now most challenges consideration at the hands of our law makers. If the full amount asked for by the President and Board of Regents cannot be appropriated, enough at least, should be given to make it certain that the University shall in no sense be hampered in its necessary teaching force, and that the gymnasium shall be properly equipped, for physical training in a university is now everywhere recognized to be as essential as mental or manual training.

The Senate Ways and Means Committee are broad minded men and their speeches at the University last Saturday show that both their hearts and business judgment are in the right place. No one can visit the University, see its students and faculty and observe the work done there, without feeling that with such an institution, under such management, giving as it does, and as more and more it will do, inspiration to all education in the State, liberality on the part of our Legislators is wise economy. If in time of peace we should prepare for war, much more in time of depression should we lay broad and deep the foundation for prosperity.

Respectfully,
JOHN EDWARDS BRAY.

Diphtheria Cure.

The testimony of a prominent physician:
FOUNTAIN CITY, Ind., June 17, 1895.
This certifies that I have been using V. O. in my practice. I have never found any medical preparation in 40 years of practice that is calculated to do so much good in so wide a range of diseases and leave no after bad effects. In Diphtheria it has proved a perfect specific in my hands, and I had rather depend on it alone in that dreadful disease than the whole popular Materia Medica with that left out.
